

Net neutrality is critical. Any change that would allow ISP's to block certain websites or services in an effort to allegedly "improve" their business model is nothing less than censorship. The same logic follows if ISP's are allow to prefer or limit bandwidth to various websites or online services. And capping data on certain websites? No, thank you.

I urge you to protect net neutrality rules and thereby access to the Internet by everyone.